

PwC Carbon Healthcheck

Are you seeing far enough to give you clear insight into the risks and opportunities of carbon trading?

Are you looking deep enough into your company's strategies and your plans for change?

Are you going high enough with the ownership of the issues in your organisation?

The PwC Carbon Healthcheck is an assessment tool to help your company prepare for full implementation of the EU emissions trading directive. Whether you are a long way down the road of preparation or still at the starting blocks, PwC Carbon Healthcheck can be used in all phases of project management.

The creation of the world's largest emissions trading regime presents new and unique challenges for utility company leaders. Devising a coherent strategic response and embedding it throughout the organisation will be mission-critical.

The PwC Carbon Healthcheck provides you with a fast-track programme designed to deliver early diagnosis of the moves that you need to make now to achieve the right outcomes in the future. It will enable you to scan the company's state of readiness across the whole organisation, examining 12 principal areas:

Organisation structure and support

Strategic planning and investment

Productions and operations

Information systems and monitoring

Environment and regulatory

Finance

Trading

Accounting and reporting

Legal

Tax

Crisis management

Investor relations

Are you acting fast enough?

The countdown to EU emissions trading is now calculated in months not years. Urgent action is required to review current strategies, risks and control frameworks, to ensure that any economic consequences of the new directive do not have an adverse impact on your company's competitiveness.

Are you talking to the right people?

With emissions trading specialists in 40 countries worldwide, PricewaterhouseCoopers is the biggest and most talked-to climate change practice. We offer an integrated approach to climate change, enabling you to consider the implications across the full context of your corporate activities. Whether it is benchmarking best practice, structuring and advising on projects or optimising revenue-generating opportunities, we are able to draw on a large pool of interdisciplinary specialists with an excellent pedigree in the environmental consulting and corporate finance areas.
